IN LOCAL LODGE ROOMS

Doings in the lodge rooms last night.

The following officers were nominated at the meeting of Jungle No. 1, B. O. A. T.: President, George Fisher; vice presidents, Charles Craush, Charles Randall and Joseph H. Beaudry; grand treasurer, W. F. O'Hara; treasurer, E. Cooper; financial secretary, R. Frisbie; recording secretary, T. Stickler; C. Randall; sergeant at arms, J. Dawson; chaplains, C. Randall, S. Hennessey; trustees, Joseph H. Beaudry, R. Gay, T. Lynch, A. Goulden, J. Dawson, E. Reilly and G. Beven; outside guard, Joseph H. Beaudry; physician, D. H. Monahan, M. D.

Betsy Ross Council, D. of L., initiated new members at its meeting last night, the work being done by the degree team in the presence of the members of the council, as well as members of Lady Howe Council of this city, and of the councils of Milford and Shelton. The following state officers were also present: State Councilor Chase of Waterbury; State Secretary McMary of New Britain; State Treasurer Able Palmerton of New Haven, and Associate State Councilor Minnie Clark of Waterbury.

Pequonnock lodge, I. O. O. F., accepted one application, making three candidates for the initiatory degree at the next meeting. Proposals were made for entertaining the Stratford and Milford lodges in the near future. After the meeting, Fred Stiles, the lodge chief, served a tempting luncheon.

Plans were further perfected at the meeting of Mithra lodge, K. of P., for forming their Past Chancellors' association. This lodge will furnish about 30 candidates for the Grand Orient degree to be conferred after the next meeting of P. T. Barnum lodge.

One new member was initiated and three applications received at the meeting of John C. Tutthill camp, W. O. W. It was also voted to attend the entertainment to be given by the Sick Benefit Society April 29.

Harmony Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., held a very enjoyable stag pinocle in O. U. A. M. hall, there being 15 tables filled with players. The prize winners and their prizes: B. O. Walters, picture; A. W. Minor, berry set; J. H. Mills, can of tobacco; R. J. Menney, pack of cards; J. Kelley, glass dish; George L. Schneider, pipe; W. J. King, picture; H. Taylor, cigars; A. M. Baker, picture; W. H. Eotter, El worth of wood. The committee in charge was composed of Charles C. Kiefer, C. Y. Baker, Raymond Crane, Roy Standish, L. J. Clark and S. E. Nichols.

TAFT ANTITHESIS OF THE VIRILE MR. ROOSEVELT

Former is Fat, Deliberate and Considerate of Senators.

"Teddy" Was Hard Fledged, Active and Went Over Heads of State Delegations to Make Appointments—One is Mighty Hunter; Other Never Killed Anything

How They Differ—Roosevelt, Preached against race-suicide. Disposed of fifty callers a minute. Wrote longest and most numerous messages on record. Used referee system in appointments. Likes to kill big game. Favorite pastime—Tennis. Favorite means of transportation—horses. Favorite adjective—peaceful.

NOTE.—The following article was written by a staff correspondent of the United Press who has enjoyed exceptional opportunities of observing the two Presidents, having been detailed to cover the White House news for this association almost continuously for the past eight years.

(By Robert H. Hazard.)
Washington, March 30.—Although the Taft administration is but a month old its startling contrasts to the Roosevelt administration are already sticking out like burrs on a chestnut. In everything that President Taft does, at work or play, politics or routine, exercise of the brain or of the body, he is the absolute antithesis of the man now on the high seas bound for Africa. The very trip Mr. Roosevelt is making is typical of the differences between the two men. Not by the widest stretch of the imagination could anyone see President Taft forsaking commerce or civilization for an invasion of the African jungle. Moreover, it is doubtful if Mr. Taft ever killed a living creature knowingly.

The Roosevelt goods were hardly out of the White House before attacks of the establishment realized that the "Old Home isn't like it used to be." Blue coated police officers at the front door of the mansion disappeared and were supplanted by two tall chocolate colored negro butlers in expansive white shirt bosoms and gray vests. The white man at the door of the necessary to the President likewise vanished and made way for a colored man. The stable housing the jumpers, ponies and coupes of the Roosevelt regime was suddenly transformed into a garage.

In the matter of handling visitors at the White House the very first day marked a change. The strenuous way succumbed before the peaceful. Callers on Roosevelt were ushered out at the rate of fifty a minute. Taft disposed of twenty or twenty-five of the Roosevelt methods of conducting agility on the part of his visitors was to invite a half dozen citizens into his office and then in a loud tone of voice discuss the matter of some appointment which had been brought to his attention. Statesmen who individually intended a quiet tête-à-tête with the Executive were only too glad to conclude the conversation in a jiffy and disperse, none desiring the inner secrets of their district meetings about so promiscuously. That's one reason why some New York statesmen carried ill-concealed brick-bats for the late Executive.

Now when President Taft makes an engagement to meet a Senator or a Congressman or any other person, he gives them the time that his business seems to justify and does not invite a crowd in to participate in the conversation. In dismissing a visitor he jumps up and says, "I'm so glad you called. Come and see me again."

Of course the Taft method has its drawbacks. It means more hours of hard work for the President. It means that scores of callers at the White House do not get to see the President at all. However, those who do get in entertain a warm regard for the Chief Executive.

Taft has announced that he will eliminate the "referee" system of appointments in the south and allow Congressmen and Senators a choice "in the selection of Federal officials, even though they be of the opposite political party." Roosevelt's appointments were based upon the report of a small coterie and the holders of public office were often obnoxious. "Personal appointments," will be reduced to a minimum. The reverse was the rule during the Roosevelt administration.

Already it has been demonstrated in the matters of messages to Congress no two men could be more widely different. Roosevelt wrote them, apparently morning, noon and night and then dreamed additions and supplementary matter. From the White House to Capitol Hill ran a perfect stream of words upon every subject under the sun. Matrimony, art, war, the simplifying spelling, In-God-We-Trust, the raising of babies, and the raising of divorced troubles, all these were meat for the something-don't-remember-minute President. He kept the world busy thinking and working about him for seven and a half years. If present indications may be taken as a promise of the future the messages during the Taft regime will be the shortest and most seldom. The only message from President Taft so far was that sent to the extraordinary session of Congress. It made just 240 words. While Roosevelt in the language of the day, "batted it in every line of human endeavor, Taft is not inclined to worry with problems which do not concern him.

Roosevelt gloried in fierce physical exercise—boxing, single stick, wrestling and horses. Taft plays an occasional game of golf and exercises a little to make his blood flow freely. Roosevelt selected certain administration newspapers in which he put out "feelers" to test the pulse of the country. Taft treats all newspapers alike. There are no favorites. Roosevelt preached against "race-suicide" and praised the parents of numerous families. Taft believes there is something better than mere numerical propagation of the race and not very long ago emphasized his views by pointing out the good that "old maids" may accomplish in this world.

But, after all, both are great big able-bodied, full-blooded, virile Americans. Each meets the problem before him in his own way. Roosevelt made good with the people. Taft gives promise of doing likewise.
